Following are recent reports from Arkansas' tourism industry.

Walton Family Foundation supports water park near Siloam Springs

The city of Siloam Springs and Oklahoma-based utility Grand River Dam Authority broke ground Oct. 29 on a 30-acre whitewater park on the Illinois River, and the Walton Family Foundation is providing 95% of the money for the $33 million project. The WOKA Whitewater Park will be built at the old spillway of Lake Frances in Oklahoma and near Watts, which is about seven miles southwest of Siloam Springs. (Oct. 29)

Partnership to add 'world-class' trails at central Arkansas parks

A public-private partnership between Arkansas State Parks, the City of Little Rock and the Arkansas Parks & Recreation Foundation with philanthropic support from the Walton Family Foundation will connect 28 miles of trails to three parks in and around Little Rock. The joint trails collaboration connects trails at Pinnacle Mountain State Park and the soon to be constructed trails at River Mountain Park and Two Rivers Park in the city of Little Rock. (Oct. 28)

Historic preservation leads to $224 million in private investments over last decade

Historic preservation in Arkansas has been a significant economic engine, according to a report commissioned by the Arkansas Historic Preservation Program (AHPP). Arkansas Department of Parks, Heritage and Tourism Secretary Stacy Hurst said Monday (Oct. 26) the report demonstrates how vital historic preservation is to the state's economy by noting that in the last decade the Arkansas Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit has attracted nearly $224 million in private investment for the rehabilitation of historic properties. (Oct. 26)

Final hurdle cleared for grant program to help service, hospitality businesses

The Arkansas Department of Parks, Heritage and Tourism (ADPHT), the Arkansas Economic Development Commission (AEDC), and the Arkansas Department of Finance and Administration (DFA) received approval Oct. 16 to proceed with a grant program utilizing $50 million in CARES Act funds for Arkansas businesses in industries significantly impacted by the COVID-19 public health emergency. TBP

COVID-19 still pushes double-digit declines in tourism sector

While the pace of decline is slowing somewhat, Arkansas' tourism industry continues to face daunting economic headwinds for large and small businesses in a sector likely to not see real relief until COVID-19 is better contained.

Arkansas' 2% tourism tax revenue between January and August was $8.981 million, down 24.9% compared with $11.953 million in the same period in 2019. The August number is a slight improvement compared with the 30.4% decline through June. The tax was up 7.2% in 2019. February revenue of $1.366 million set a new monthly record for the tax.

January-August hospitality tax collections among 17 cities surveyed for the Arkansas Tourism Ticker fell 20.6% compared with the same period in 2019. The decline is an improvement compared with the 21.9% decline between January and June. The tourism tax revenue in the cities was up 5.2% in 2019.

The tourism industry entered 2020 following a robust 2019, and for the first two months of 2020, collections were up 3.8%, the state's 2% tourism tax revenue was up 13.2%, and the average monthly job numbers were down only 0.04%.

Collections of Arkansas' 2% tourism set a new record in 2019 and hospitality tax collections among 17 Arkansas cities surveyed for the Arkansas Tourism ticker topped the $53 million mark in 2019. The year marked the fifth consecutive year of growth as measured by the Arkansas Tourism Ticker.

The Arkansas Tourism Ticker is managed by Talk Business & Politics, and sponsored by the Arkansas Hospitality Association. The ticker uses the following three measurements to review the health of the state's tourism industry.

- Hospitality tax collections — prepared food tax and lodging tax — of 17 Arkansas cities (cities listed below along with collections for each city);
- Tourism sector employment numbers as reported by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics; and
- Collections of Arkansas' 2% statewide tourism tax. TBP
