Following are recent reports from Arkansas' tourism industry.

War Memorial Stadium to host national championships

The National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA), along with the Little Rock Convention & Visitors Bureau, and Arkansas Parks, Heritage, and Tourism, announced April 30 that Little Rock will be the location of the 2021, 2022, and 2023 NJCAA Football Championships at War Memorial Stadium. The postponed 2020-2021 NJCAA Football Championship is slated for June 5. (April 30)

Governor donates money to help fund Sultana Museum

Gov. Asa Hutchinson has dedicated $750,000 toward building a Sultana museum in Marion. He made the announcement at the proposed site for the museum that will cost an estimated $7.5 million. A fundraising campaign is now underway. A timetable for raising the money and building the museum has not been released. (April 27)

U.S. Marshals Museum seeks help with fundraising

With $8 million still needed before production of the museum experience can start, the U.S. Marshals Museum Foundation has enlisted the help of national fundraising consulting firm Bentz Whaley Flessner (BWF). To date, the museum — near the Arkansas River in downtown Fort Smith — has raised nearly $38.7 million for the USMM building, campus, and Hall of Honor. There remains $12.6 million to raise to complete the museum. (April 7)

Expansion planned for Crystal Bridges

Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art plans to increase its size by 50%. According to a news release, the Bentonville museum will add 100,000 square feet to the 200,000-square-foot facility. According to the release, the expansion will showcase the museum's growing collection and welcome more visitors. Since opening in 2011, Crystal Bridges has welcomed more than five million people, the release said. (April 7) TBP
